

Scharen Collingwood earned her Master's degree in school counseling from the University of Wyoming. She is currently in her 7th year as a middle school counselor in Greybull, Wyoming. Under her leadership, Greybull Middle School became the second RAMP school in the state of Wyoming in 2018. She is passionate about excellence in school counseling and enjoys collaborating with others to promote the ASCA National Model and the profession of school counseling. Scharen served a four-year presidency rotation for the Wyoming School Counselor Association, was the 2018 Wyoming School Counselor of the Year, and is starting her third year as a RAMP reviewer for the American School Counselor Association.
